Name of the event: Three Day Workshop on 'Reservation Policy and Indian Constitution in India'

Date: 13-14-15 December

Time: 11:30 am -2:00pm

Venue: DCJ Classroom-1

Name of the Resource Person: Shri. Hari Narake

Brief description of the event: Hari Narake is a well known personality for his expertise on democracy and Indian Constitution. The social reservation policy in India is a subject of multifaceted layers and a study of critical analysis for media reporting. Students of the media profession should know the historical background, the political scenarios and an objectivity in terms of the reservation policy in India. The secular and democratic perspective becomes a crucial aspect as well as an intellectual skill to look such complex issues. Hari Narake Sir conducted the workshop in a three days series. Day-1 he covered the historical aspects of the Indian society and disparity; Day-2 he shed light on the views of Dr. B.R Ambedkar and the entire drafting committee of the constitution and their views; on Day-3 he commented upon the Maratha Reservation aspects in Maharashtra and its complexities in terms of its implementation.

Students keenly listened all the three lectures and asked several questions. Head of Department Prof. Shenai welcomed Narake Sir, Prof. Swapnil Kamble presented vote of thanks.
