11. Brief Description of the Event:

The Department of Commerce, Marathwada Mitra Mandal's College of Commerce, Pune, in collaboration with the Multi Commodity Exchange (MCX), organized an Investor Awareness Session on 29th July, 2026 at Hall No. 4, Commerce Building, MMCC for the students of S.Y. and T.Y. B.Com.

Under the awareness session, the session on "Basics of the Commodity Market" was conducted by CA. Anupkumar Mundada, Finance and Accounts Professional. The resource person introduced students to the concept of the commodity market and explained the importance of commodity trading in the Indian economy. He discussed different types of commodities, the functioning of the Multi Commodity Exchange (MCX), market participants, trading mechanisms, and the process of commodity trading.

The session also highlighted the significance of commodity markets in price discovery, risk management, and investment diversification. Students were introduced to the basic concepts of futures contracts, hedging, and derivatives trading. Real-life examples of commodity trading through MCX were shared to help students understand the practical application of commodity markets.

The session was highly interactive, with students actively participating by asking questions related to commodity trading, investment opportunities, and market risks. The workshop provided valuable exposure to financial markets and encouraged students to explore career opportunities in the investment and finance sector.

12. Learning Outcome:

- Students understood the fundamentals and functioning of the commodity market.
- They gained knowledge about the role and operations of the Multi Commodity Exchange (MCX).
- Students became aware of commodity trading, futures contracts, and risk management techniques.
- The session enhanced their financial literacy and encouraged them to make informed investment decisions.
